

AN ORIGINAL KUBUS RETURNS

Mogens Lassen's iconic Kubus candleholder has swiftly become an essential part of Danish design history and it is with great pleasure that by Lassen now can present the entire Kubus collection in a stunning burnished copper version.

With a vibrant and dynamic surface, the Kubus collection in burnished copper features a distinct character that takes us back to where it all started – to the first original Kubus candleholder designed by architect Mogens Lassen in burnished copper in the 1960s.

Architect Mogens Lassen was ahead of his time when he designed the Kubus candleholder in 1962 as a reaction to the overly decorative and elaborate style found in contemporary homes. At that time, Kubus was exclusively reserved for close friends, architect colleagues and Mogens Lassen's family. Today the Kubus candleholders are an essential part of Danish design history that carries a strong tradition: Danish design – Made in Denmark!

The new collection in burnished copper comes at a time when experimentations with metals and surfaces are made and the good craftsmanship is being valued.

The new Kubus collection in burnished copper has a raw quality and unique look, that will become even more beautiful with time. A special production process controls
